Loss of the Steamship Europe-Some Particulars Concerning the Ill-Fated Vessel.

NEW YORK, April 8.-The steamship Europe, which foundered at sea on a voyage from Havre to this port, was one of the finest ships of the fleet owned by the French trans-Adam'ic company, and in Little Rock on the twentieth of May. was considered by ad to be a fine, sea-worthy vessel and well-found in every respect. She was lengthened last year at Newcastle-op-the-Tyne, England, and altered from a sidewheal steamer to a respect. She was commanded by Cap-cain Lemarie, an able and experienced captain, and who has been in the employ of the company for a number of years. The value of the lost steamer was bout one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and was insured in French insurance companies for about two-thirds of her full value. Her carge was a very valuable one, consisting chiefly of silks, wines and sardines. Her agents think she probably carried a great quantity of extra-fine goods for the spring trade, and that the value of her cargo could not have been less than flocking to the scene of the late discovone midion dollars. A greater portion of these goods was probably insured, but their exact value cannot, of course, be ascertained until the arrival of her manifest. The Greece, with the rescued passengers, is expected to arrive either to-night or to-morrow, and all that is low doubtful concerning the disaster

Saturday afternoon a negro about Saunders, who lives about six miles from Nashville, on the Murfreesboro pike. The disturbance was caused by Hali, the negro, having molested the children of Mrs. Saunders, and after some words Hall told Mrs. Saunders to shut her mouth, adding that he intended to shoot her husband that night. This was about three o'clock in the afternoon, and after dark Mr. Saunders was fired upon by Hall, and seriously wounded in the right side, as he was at work in h's stable. Saunders immediately ran to his house, seized a londed shot-gun, and, returning, met Hall and shot him dead. The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that Saunders killed Hall in selfdefense. The former is badly wounded, but with careful nursing he may recover. ELECTION NOTES.

The senate bill to provide for the incorporation and regulation of railroad companies in the Territories of the United States, was read, and Senator Stewart explained its provisions. He said that the object of the bill was to enable the people in the Territories, who desired to build railroads with their own money, to do so without applying to congress or Territorial legislature for a charter. The bill granted no public land except for stations, depots, and right of way. He thought the bill perfect, having been carefully examined by lawyers on the committee.

The committee reports that the law is not being violated in the work done under government supervision, and as to that done under contractors there is no way of enforcing the law. Mr. Cox believed the eight-hour law should either be carried out or repealed; it had not been carried out in the public buildings either in New York or elsewhere, that there was a jiggle in that business, and he wished the house to take action on the subject. and his advice would be to adopt that measure without amendment as the best thing that could be done at present. Specie payment was a myth. Everywhere the banks always suspended on a run. Time and credit would work the government out of debt and bring currency up to a gold point. At the close of the war the paper circulation was twice its present volume, and people did not suffer, but prospered. The pains of contraction had been felt. When the present limit was resched when the present limit was reached business had increased, and more currency was needed. If contraction was necessary, why did not great eastern bankers, who urged it, set the example by withdrawing their circulation? Legal-tenders were the life-blood of the nation in war and peace. With them wages had risen fifty per cent.; it was the poor man's currency; it was the farmer's currency; it was the farmer's currency; for it gave him good prices and a heme market.

Mr. Townsend opposed the bill as one paving the way to repudiation. This condition of things had been predicted two thousand years ago, when Virgil wrote "Fairtes descensus averni sed revocare gradum his est labor has opus est," which, rendered into vernacular, meant that the gentleman from Ten-nessee might provide for the issue of a large mass of shipplasters, but that it Senator Scott, from the committee on claims reported favorably on a bill to refer the cotton claim of R. M. and Stethant Develops to the court of claims. Senator Davis called up a resolution introduced by him a few days ago, calling upon the secretary of the treasury to report to the senate the amount of the defalcation of various disbursing officers of the government, and it was referred.

The argued ments indefinite, and would probably postpone them forever. There was but one way to get out of the difficulty, and that was to get out at the same hole that we went in at; as they had gone in by expansion, so they must go out by confirmation.

Mr. Beck stated that he had early in the session prepared a bill, and it was referred to the committee on ways and means, which he had hoped would have een reported back, but it had not been. The purpose of it was to substitute the notes of the government for those of the national banks, and to give to the peo-ple, instead of to the bondholders, the credit of the government. Under the present system a few men obtained the credit of the government for almost nothing, and the pending bill only pro-posed to extend it from the few men who had it, to others of a like class who happened to have bonds. He hoped to be able to move his bill as a substitute for the pending measure. He would make legal-tender notes receivable in payment of all duties due the government. All the depreciation of the currency had been brought about by the overnment in the interest of the bondholders, by repudiating its own debts, and by refusing to take legal-tenders in payment of custom-duties while it forced its citizens to take legal-tenders in Notice to Contractors. payment of private debts. It was the duty of the government to manage its own currency, and to see that it is kept good, uniform and equal value everywhere. He warned the east not to oppress the west, for in less than ten years two-thirds of the members of the house would come from west of the Alleghenies, and it might be that other great avenues to the ocean would be found besides the present ones; that the Mississippi and St. Lawrence might be said to be the great highways for the produce of the south and west. The people of the east had wealth in bonds, and congress had the right to tax them all. He hoped to see the day when the wealth of the country, and not its poverty, would bear the burlens of taxation.
